How Colored Lamps Are Made.

"Almost everybody supposes that these little globes are made of colored glass," said an electric light wiper the other morning, picking up one of the colored incandescent lamps preparatory to fastening it in a large illuminating sign, "but the color is not in the glass; it is only laid on the outside. There's where the color was dipped," and as he held up the lamp for inspection, a tinge of red color could be seen, extending like a thin film around the brass top of the lamp, and showing plainly that the brilliant red had been gained by plunging the completed lamp into a liquid. To look at the colored incandescents as they are used in decorating halls or forming illuminated signs, almost anyone would take it for granted that their coloring was in the composition of the glass. But to color glass in composition requires a preparation of gold and copper, and is too expensive to satisfy the ordinary demands of business. The companies have therefore been driven to find some cheap substitute for genuine colored glass, and that substitute is now obtained by covering the globes with a liquid coloring matter and allowing them to dry. The effect is just as good as if the globes were of genuine colored glass, but the coloring is not so lasting. It may be washed off or it may fade, and until the coloring process is perfected, the color cannot be depended on in any case for long use without renewal. Although it might at first be thought that this method could be used for coloring the glass used in all kinds of signal lamps, the large colored globes in drugstore windows, or anything else where colored glass is wanted, it is easy to see that whenever a flame comes in contact with the glass colored by the cheap method, the color, made up as it is with alcohol and an inflammable gas, will be destroyed. This method has been used for making cheap eye-glasses and spectacles, however; for a piece of mica colored with a film of aniline is just as good a protector against the glare of the snow as if the manufacturer had used the finest colored lenses.—Boston Transcript.

A WOODEN PLOW

Suddenly Explodes and Kills Two Men.

A strange and fatal explosion of the power of high explosives occurred at the Judson Dynamite Works, near Berkeley. In the mixing department was used a wooden plow, which had become saturated with the materials, which in combination forms nitroglycerin. This plow was in need of repair. It was taken 1,000 feet from the building in order that the peril of explosion might be lessened. L. N. Hoffman, the general foreman, stood near the plow directing the work, while John Harbitz, Allen E. Butson and Frank Koster were making the repairs.

Mr. Hoffman told them there would be danger in using a hammer, but a wooden plow seemed a very harmless implement and a nail seemed a convenient means of fastening a loose piece. Butson picked up a nail, held it in place, and struck it with a hammer.

An explosion—not very loud—a puff of white smoke—and Butson lay dead on the ground, his body horribly mangled. Harbitz also was cruelly hurt. His right arm was mangled, and in an attempt to save his life it was amputated. The attempt was useless. He died in two hours after he was hurt.

Frank Koster, the third man injured, was within a few feet of the plow at the time the explosion occurred. His escape from death shows the eccentricities of the force of dynamite. His only injuries were a few scratches.

Mr. Hoffman stood within 13 feet of the two men killed and was not hurt in any way.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Santa Fe, N. M., June 25.—The great Peralta grant, situated in Arizona and New Mexico and covering 12,465,000 acres of land, which has been on trial for three weeks, was decided today by the Private Land Claims in favor of the Government. The claimant was in court, appearing cool and collected. The court held every title paper to be forged and manufactured and that the mission records of San Salvador, Cal., were forged to enable the wife of the claimant to connect herself with a Peralta family. Chief Justice Reed announced it was not necessary to determine who Mrs. Peralta Reavis was, but it was sufficient to hold that she was not an heir to the alleged grant nor entitled to maintain the suit. The written opinion will be filed by the Chief Justice as soon as it can be prepared.

Upon adjournment Reavis was arrested by the United States Marshal for asserting false claims against the Government, upon complaint made by United States Attorney Reynolds under instructions given by Attorney General Olney, given before he left the Department of Justice. United States Attorney Reynolds and his associates, Mallet Prevost, are being showered with congratulations from all over Arizona. This practically ends the most stupendous fraud ever attempted in this country and successfully carried on for a quarter of a century.

GEN. THOMAS

Would Have Been a Southern Soldier But For His Wife.

General William Mahone, of Virginia, sat in Chamberlain's deeply interested in a well-bound volume of substantial size. To a reporter who ventured to ask the title of the book, the General courteously said:

"It is made up of 'Papers of the Military Historical Society of Massachusetts,' and contains critical sketches of some of the leading Federal and Confederate Generals. I was at that moment engaged on the sketch devoted to General Thomas. It is a very fair and interesting account of his character and services. I knew Thomas personally, for he was born and reared in my section of Virginia. He was a military man of excellent parts, rather slow to act, but never able to grasp the idea that he had been whipped. His bulldog tenacity was a strong characteristic."

"I know a good deal more than this book about Thomas's predilection for the Southern cause. In passing through the State on his way from Texas to New York at the time that the Legislature was deliberating on the question of secession, Thomas said with emphasis: 'There is nothing for the South to do but fight.' It was well understood that his sympathies were with the people of his native section. I was empowered by the Governor of Virginia to offer him an important position created for him and tendered it, with the full expectation that it would be accepted. He married a Miss Mary, of New York, and it is no doubt true that his wife's influence had much to do with keeping him on the Union side."—Washington Post.

Look Here, Silverites.

Hackberry, Ariz., June 25.—From Beach Springs comes the story of the finding of a nugget, or bowlder rhyolite, of pure silver, such as there has been no record of in the history of mining in the West. The bowlder weighed about half a ton, and its value is anywhere from $5,000 to $10,000. It was found by Wm. Tucker and John Doyle, both prospectors.

Draining The Lakes.

The drainage canal which Chicago is constructing has caused such fears and jealousies in other lake cities that the question is to be investigated by a commission of engineers whether the reduction of the water level of the lakes will be great enough to interfere with trade. The question is not now raised for the first time, but recent events have brought it more prominently into public view.

The notion that a canal to connect the lake with the Illinois river, and so with the Mississippi river and so with the Gulf of Mexico, would have the effect of draining the lakes to the extent of interfering with travel seems rather strained and improbable, but it has been seriously debated by engineers, who are not agreed in their estimates. The canal will take from the lake 6,000 cubic feet of water per second, but ten years hence the amount will be doubled. This is a considerable volume of water, but when we compare it with the 225,000 cubic feet per second that flow through the Detroit river, from Lake Huron to Lake Erie, it does not seem so alarming. It is even affirmed that the tunnels of the Chicago and Milwaukee water-works, when running to their full capacity, take in more water than the canal will do.

The waterway which Chicago calls by the modest name of drainage canal is in fact meant to be a great ship canal, which will withdraw water meant for the St. Lawrence river and transfer it to the Gulf of Mexico. It is an ambitious project, and is well calculated to excite jealousy among the commercial rivals of the Windy City. But it seems very improbable that the water will be withdrawn will have any serious effect upon the depth of the lakes.—Courier-Journal.

Deepest Mining Mine.

The deepest mining shaft in America is not on the West Coast among the celebrated gold and silver lodes, as one might expect, nor in the coal regions of Pennsylvania, or among the "mines of the Montezumas" in Mexico. It is common everyday copper mine at Opechee, Mich., which, at last accounts, was far below three quarters of a mile in depth. The mine in question is called the "Tamarack," and is reputed by experts to tap the richest copper lode in the world.

QUEER LEGACY

In order that his daughter may become enlightened on the beauties of filial obedience, Richard L. Edwards, who died recently at the Pennsylvania Hospital, devised to her the sum of $5 to which to purchase a treatise on the fifth commandment. Edward's will, disposing of a small estate, was probated yesterday and contains these clauses:

"Whereas, My wife, Mary F. Edwards, having left my home now over four years without any just cause or provocation, and by an instrument in writing, dated April 1, 1890, duly acknowledged and approved, relieves me of all claims she may have had at that time on any real or personal estate held by me or that I may hereafter acquire, all the right of ownership or otherwise, and by a paper signed by her released me from all claim for her support during her life, and having received from me the sum of $500, with other suitable considerations, I do not feel that I am under any obligations to treat her otherwise than an utter stranger."

"And as I justly consider that my daughter, Mary Elizabeth Edwards, was the main cause of her leaving me, and to mark my detestation of her most unfeeling conduct I will and bequeath to her the sum of $5 to purchase a treatise on the fifth commandment."—Philadelphia Record.

Cheap Railway Fares.

An electric railway is to be constructed in Montmartre, Paris. It is originally proposed to build a cable road, but wisely abandoned after a commission examined several conduit systems, notably those in Buda Pesth and Washington. The fare on the railway will be two cents, except during the hours when the workmen go to and from their work, when it will be reduced to one cent. This road is to be equipped with electrical apparatus constructed in France. This will be the cheapest fare on any electric road, we believe, in Europe.—Electrical Review.

He has discovered a lode 800 feet wide and 400 feet high, impregnated with iron ore, which bears gold and silver to the value of $75 to $150 per ton. A FAMOUS PHRASE.

Origin of the Expression. "Blood is Thicker than Water."

The expression, "Blood is thicker than water," was first used by Captain Josiah Tattall, U. S. N. This gallant officer, in June, 1895, conveyed United States Minister Ward to the Polho River, China, Admiral Hope, in command of a British and French fleet, was attempting to ascend the river. A terrific battle took place. Tattall, though a noncombatant performing many acts of gallantry in rescuing British and French soldiers and sailors. He was greatly praised for his conduct in the whole affair. It is true that he had violated neutrality in giving aid to the English while they were at war with a nation friendly to us, and for this he was criticized. It was then that he made his famous reply:

"I did my duty. Blood is thicker than water, and it was not for me to stand by and see men of my race massacred by barbarians."

In his opinion he was upheld not only by American popular approval, but by the National Government.

The Mirror and Farmer says: The high prices for beef should encourage farmers to raise more fowls. It requires two or three years to produce a steer for market, but only a few months need elapse before a large number of chicks can be marketed. The farmer has always a home market for his poultry on his own table, and he can avoid high prices for beef by substituting poultry in place of the more expensive meat. In this section of the United States there are large cities, as well as smaller towns, that will take all the poultry offered, but the consumption of poultry on the farms should also reduce the supply and increase the profits on those that are shipped away.

HONG KONG PLAGUE.

Again Breaks Out and Causes Fear in China.

Washington, June 26.—The United States Consul at Foo Chow, China, reports the appearance of the Hong Kong plague at that place. He says that it is already established as an epidemic, but that, so far, it is confined to the city proper. He adds:

"There is no question or doubt about the epidemic in the city being identical with that which last year caused such mortality in Hong Kong and Canton and other Chinese ports. The circumstances attending its appearance and progress unmistakably stamp it as the plague; and in the infected districts within the city the rats are dying in great numbers, just as has been the invariable rule wherever the plague has shown itself in the past."

In a city like Foo Chow it is impossible to institute any sort of sanitary measures to prevent the spread of contagious diseases, or even to mitigate the sufferings of the victims. So unless the present epidemic dies out of itself, there every prospect that misery and death will come to thousands of the 1,500,000 of people living in the proper and its immediate suburbs."

Depredating Dogs and Poultry.

Dogs are a nuisance and a menace to poultry-men. There is but one way to teach owners of dogs that they must keep them at home, and that is to compel them to pay damages. Do not shoot the dog or violate the law yourself, but endeavor to have witnesses of the dog work, send a bill to the owner covering your loss, and if he does not pay, sue him for it, but do not go into the court unless you are sure you can prove your claim beyond dispute. Avoid going into law always if possible, but if farmers will make the owners of dogs pay for all damages it will not be long before there will be fewer dogs.—Mirror and Farmer.

HONG KONG PLAGUE.

Again Breaks Out and Causes Fear in China.

Washington, June 26.—The United States Consul at Foon Chow, China, reports the appearance of the Hong Kong plague at that place. He says that it is already established as an epidemic, but that, so far, it is confined to the city proper. He adds:

"There is no question or doubt about the epidemic in the city being identical with that which last year caused such mortality in Hong Kong and Canton and other Chinese ports. The circumstances attending its appearance and progress unmistakably stamp it as the plague; and in the infected districts within the city the rats are dying in great numbers, just as has been the invariable harbinger wherever the plague has shown itself in the past."

In a city like Foon Chow it is impossible to institute any sort of sanitary measures to prevent the spread of contagious diseases, or even to mitigate the sufferings of the victims. So unless the present epidemic dies out of itself, there every prospect that misery and death will come to thousands of the 1,500,000 of people living in the proper and its immediate suburbs."

Depredating Dogs and Poultry.

Dogs are a nuisance and a menace to poultry-men. There is but one way to teach owners of dogs that they must keep them at home, and that is to compel them to pay damages. Do not shoot the dog or violate the law yourself, but endeavor to have witnesses of the dogs work, send a bill to the owner covering your loss, and if he does not pay, sue him for it, but do not go into the court unless you are sure you can prove your claim beyond dispute. Avoid going into law ways if possible, but if farmers will make the owners of dogs pay for all damages it will not be long before there will be fewer dogs.—Mirror and Farmer.

IT IS NOT PARADISE

BUT—

If you have some cash to spare and are willing to work, success and independence cannot be more surely secured than by buying a few acres of irrigated land in the Salt River Valley.

This valley is in Southern Arizona, and is noted for its semi-tropical fruits and superb climate. Horticulturists say greater profits can be realized here from oranges and grapes than in Florida or California. Physicians assert that the dry, bracing climate and the healing qualities Italy's airs. The great blizzard did not blight the tenderest in this protected spot. To get there, take Santa Route to Phoenix, A. T. via Prescott and the new line, S. F. & P. Ry. Address Geo. T. Hard to Teach.

A school had been dismissed from a school house in the mountains and the children were scurrying away in time for me to meet the school-master as I rode by. He was a long, lank, lanky kind of a mountaineer, about as unlike an educator as I could imagine, but he answered my purpose.

"Howdy do?" said I riding up alongside.

"Howdy?" said he.

"Is your day's work done?" said I.

"Yes, 'm glad of it," said he.

"Don't you like it?" said I.

"Only sorta," said he.

"Are they so hard to teach as that?" said I.

"Gump up 'em all," said he.

"Are they any of the boreless?" said I.

"Mostly, except one; she's about 20," said he.

"I should think she would be easy to teach," said I.

"I looked at me with a quick, un- certain look but there was no smile at all."

"You know anything about girls, mister?" said he very earnestly.

"I know they are the boreless of the south," said I with a grin.

"I've heard that afore, said he lugubriously.

"Don't you believe it?" said I.

"I don't say," said he.

"You don't mean to tell me this girl of 20 gives you any trouble?" said I.

"That's what," said he, with more honesty than he had before displayed.

"What's she learn," said I.

"She don't seem to," said he.

"Why time he shook himself and with emphasis.

"You say that, of I know," said he.

"I've been trying for the last three months to learn her that I was the fellow she oughter spile on to, but the more I try the less she learns. I've got two more months up school yet, and I ain't got to give up a tryin', but I don't git her learnt by that time, I'm goin' to throw up my job an' hire out as a farm hand. I reckon, mister, that cut for an educator now!"

"I began to draw upon him that possibly he was right, but I did what I would to encourage him until he left me at the forks of the road—Detroit Press.

Will 1900 be a Leap Year?

That 1895 will be a leap year is an admitted fact, but that 1900 will not be a leap year was settled long ago. By an act passed in 1751 it was settled that the calendar should be reformed in a number of particulars.

From January 1, 1752 a calendar was used to commence on that date, and did not on March 25, as many had it, the same year—1752—eleven days later, on March 3d to the 13th inclusive, so that what would have been the 14th was made the 3d after which the reckoning proceeded as if nothing had happened.

This new style so introduced went on regularly after that, but in 1800 no leap year was reckoned. There will be another like change at the end of the century, for 1900 is not to be a leap year, and 1891 is to be "the fifth after Bixsextile, or leap year, and the first year of the twentieth century."

The first leap year of this century as in 1884, and is so described in a calendar of the year. Moore's almanac for 1890 calls the year the year after Bixsextile or leap year, and gives to February twenty-eight days only. In the like manner 1892 is called the sixth and 1893 the seventh after leap year.

Odd as this seems, we are going to do the same thing after next year, so that for seven years there will be no leap year.

February 29 for any anniversary, if it is rather random some people who have been born or married on that day—London Queen.

A BIG BUG.

The Senator Looked in the Bed and Found It.

Mr. _____ used to be one of the conspicuous lobbyists at Springfield. He was, as we recall, the representative of a certain corporation that was very free with railroad passes and that would, when hard pressed, give up money in good round sums. The stories that are told of the crookedness of the late Legislature have served to revive memories of Mr. _____, or "Mack," as his associates called him. At one time there was a certain Republican member of the State Senate whose vote was needed in the interest of the corporation which "Mack" represented. This Senator was honest, simply because he was afraid to be dishonest. On one occasion he frankly told "Mack" that he had no scruples against selling his vote, if only he were insured against exposure and the consequent disgrace. "Mack" laughed heartily at this, and assured the fellow that there were plenty of ways of getting around the difficulty. "What evening," "Mack" went to the Senator's room ostensibly for a social call. He took his seat upon the bed and engaged for perhaps half an hour in a desultory chat upon commonplace subjects. All at once "Mack" began to pull and scratch at himself.

"Do believe," says he, "that there's vermin in this bed. Yes, there's the biggest bug I ever saw."

With these remarks "Mack" made a lunge under the coverlet of the bed and went through a lot of motions and antics as if, forthwith, he was actually upon the trail of the "fatback."

Finally he got up and ran out of the room, declaring he would no longer stay where he was so liable to molestation.

"Just look for yourself," he cried to the Senator, and you'll find the biggest bug in that bed you ever saw."

The lilt was as good as a kick would have been. The Senator pulled down the sheet of the bed and discovered there a large roll of bills of high denomination.

"I captured that bug," said the Senator to "Mack" next morning when the two met in the Capitol. And from that time the Senator voted the way "Mack" pointed every time.—Chicago Record.

DISCOURD AT CONCORD.

People Objected to Seventh Day Adventist Doctrines when They Came to Kissing Negatives and Sexual Equality.

Raleigh, N. C., June 20.—The town of Concord has a sensation. The rumor became current that a Rev. A. W. Sanborn and wife, Seventh Day Adventist, from Michigan, were holding meetings with negroes of a denomination known as "Disciples" and were kissing negroes and encouraging the inter-marriage of the races. Last night, a mob of twenty white men called on Sanborn, while he was at the house of a colored woman and ordered him to leave the vicinity within a twenty-four hours. Sanborn declared he would not go and said the Lord had sent him to work with the negroes, and he was in the Lord's hands. The mob left with the statement that it would return. Sanborn publishes a card denying the kissing and preaching of sexual equality.

HOW HE SETTLED IT.

Babies Were Changed But the Solution Was an Easy one.

A famous lawyer once had a singular case to settle. A doctor came to him upon a patient. Two children, living in the same house, had babies of equal age, who so resembled each other that their own mothers were unable to distinguish them when they were together, and it happened that by the carelessness of the nurse the children had become mixed. How were the mothers to make sure that they received back their own infants?

"That perhaps," suggested the lawyer, "the children weren't changed at all?"

"Oh, but there's no doubt that they were changed," said the doctor.

"Are you sure of it?"

"Perfectly."

"Well, if that's so, why don't you change them back again? I don't see any difficulty in that case."—Tid-Bits.

WAS HER OLD MAMMY.

A Pretty Incident in a Chicago Street Car That Touched the Hearts of all Who Observed It.

A north side car had passed Washington Place the other day when a spruce, tidy, comfortable-looking negro, on the right side of sixty, perhaps, got on and settled himself in a seat. Beside him carried a little basket covered with a napkin that was as snowy as the apron she wore, and the cap on her iron-gray head. Evidently the trusted housekeeper or attendant for some one well-to-do. Other passengers consisted of a brace of giggling schoolgirls, belonging to that hopeful, grivled period that thrives on a love and chewing-gum diet; a benevolent gentleman in drab; two society sparklers, accompanied by balloon sleeves and a pair of shimmering, eye-glass nonentities in Effie town; a pair of duck clothes, and a look-alike shoes; a lovely woman of the rich, olive type, charmingly groomed and groomed, whose very presence shed a genial and gentle influence on the beholders; and a few others of no practical account.

The salutary old colored woman cast her eyes about modestly and took her bearings. She sat nearly opposite the olive beauty, so richly garbed, the unconscious magnet of admiration.

With these remarks "Mack" made a lunge under the coverlet of the bed and went through a lot of motions and antics as if, forthwith, he was actually upon the trail of the "fatback."

Finally he got up and ran out of the room, declaring he would no longer stay where he was so liable to molestation.

Louisville Tobacco Market.

Sales on our market for the week just closed amount to 4170 hids., with receipts for the same period 3579 hids. Sales on our market since January 1 amount to 102,295 hids. Sales of the crop of 1894 on our market to date amount to 102,953 hids.

We have had a week of very large offerings of tobacco on our market, no doubt the result of the crowd attracted by the cheap rates offered by the different railroads on account of the convention. The market has remained firm and active for decidedly fine grades of leaf both of color and red and there has been no tendency toward weakening in prices for the common and medium grades with high color, but for all other grades of leaf, prices have been lower and rejection-lows.

With regard to crop prospects and extent of the planting, we must reiterate our report of last week to the effect that the planting has been completed in the better territory, but in the poorer territory, with the exception of the Hart county section, but in the Mason county district and extreme Eastern Kentucky counties, the rains have not been of a general character and the planting in these localities is far below the estimated crop and it is by no means likely that the entire harvest of this year can be as large as that of last year.

The following quotations fairly represent our market for burley tobacco 1894 crop:

- Trash. (Dark or damaged tobacco) $1.50 to $2.75.
- Common color trash, $3.00 to $3.75.
- Medium to good color trash, $3.75 to $5.50.
- Common logs, not color, $2.50 to $4.00.
- Common color logs, $4.00 to $5.50.
- Medium to good color logs, $5.50 to $8.50.
- Common to medium leaf $6.00 to $10.00.
- Medium to good leaf, $10 to $15.00.
- Good to fine leaf, $15 to $18.
- Select wrapleaf leaf, $18 to $28.00.

FLEMINGSBURG, KY., June 27, '95. This is to certify that John W. Wilson has been proprietor of the Merchants Hotel at this place for the past two years, and we take pleasure in stating that he has conducted the Hotel in a very satisfactory manner, and being a man of excellent morals and high character, we take pleasure in recommending him to any community that he may locate in, as being worthy of their confidence and esteem. The Hotel has been leased this year for more than was at first proposed to accept.

JOS. J. REYNOLDS.

Pres. The Flemingsburg Hotel Co.

"Bail" Tom Smith suffered the penalty of his crimes at Jackson on Friday. He was credited with having taken the lives of eight men. Before he was hanged he made a profusion of religion and on the morning of his death he was taken to the river and immersed. It Montgomery will follow Breathitt's laudable example and hang, by process of law, a few of the murderers in our midst we will soon have a much more orderly community. It is only by the errors of the law that the murderous inclined can be held in check. Whatever mistakes may have been made in the way of enforcing the law in the past, let us forget, and see to it that a healthy public sentiment is so openly expressed that it brings about a strict enforcement of the law in the future.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure by local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surface of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

Marriage is going more and more out of fashion in Berlin. The annual statistics for 1894 show that the number of marriages is decreased from 17,810 in 1890 to 16,555 in 1893 and 16,820 in 1894, despite the increase in population of about 35,000. The rate is now 10 1/2 marriages for each 1,000 of population, whereas but four years ago it was 23. Heretofore times accounts for the phenomenon more than anything else.

The oft-told tale that the bite of one snake does not inconvenience another snake may now be relegated where it belongs. At the aquarium in Berlin—perhaps the most wonderful collection of the reptiles, fishes and animals in the world—a splendid specimen of American rattlesnake was bitten the other week by an Australian sister or brother; I don't know which. The result was the sudden death of the rattler.

On Sunday, the congregation of the C. M. E. Church, of this place, held a meeting for the purpose of raising money to help discharge a debt on their church. They raised $117.03. This from a congregation of working people, who are almost to a member dependent upon their daily labor, shows a devotion to the cause of the Master that puts to the blush many congregations to which the Bountiful Giver has dispensed his blessings without stint. The pastor, Rev. P. A. Sample, is doing a good work among the people in Mt. Sterling and they are holding up his hands.

GAGGED IN A CELLAR.

Sensational Attempt to Secure Money From a Lawyer.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 26.—Octavius C. Cottle, a prominent Buffalo lawyer, was found bound and gagged in the cellar of a vacant house at Black Rock his morning. Mr. Cottle's story is as follows:

On Monday morning an unknown man drove to his house and told him a man on Cheneago street desired to make a real estate deal with him. Mr. Cottle was driven to an unoccupied cottage in Barnes street, where, on entering, he was seized by his guide and another man and gagged and bound. Money was demanded, and under threats he was compelled to write a note to his wife saying he was under arrest in Fort Erie and asking for $2,500. The man with the buggy drove back to Mr. Cottle's house with the note and delivered it to Mrs. Cottle, who called upon her son for advice. The latter went out to confer with the man, who rode away.

Mr. Cottle was kept in bondage for two days. He was handcuffed and a dog collar put around his neck and chained in the cellar. A pitcher of water was put near so by stooping he could reach it, and the only food given him was a few crackers. Here he remained while other efforts to extort money from the Cottle family were made. At length it was decided, perhaps they would be tracked, took Mr. Cottle up stairs to the ground floor of the cottage and then disappeared. Here he was found this morning by a policeman, who had heard groans proceeding from within, and on investigation, discovered the captive.

A Brutal Crime.

Danville, Ky., June 26.—The particulars of the killing of Dan Kidd at a picnic near Tollyon, Adair county, by the Crockett brothers, a few days ago, show it to have been a bloody affair. Young Dan Kidd and the Crockett boys got into a quarrel, and the two Crocketts drew their pistols on him. Before they could shoot, Kidd's father came up and said to them: "Don't shoot the boy. Shoot me." The Crocketts turned their weapons upon the father and shot. Five shots were fired. Two went over his head, one entered his heart, and the other went into his legs. After Kidd had fallen dead, the Crocketts bent over his prostrate body and pounded Kidd's head repeatedly with their forty-five caliber revolvers. The murderers escaped. There is a great deal of indignation in the neighborhood over the killing.

Jumped into a Well.

Mason Goodpastor, who lives east of town about four miles, jumped into a well at his residence and drowned himself Wednesday morning. His wife went to the well for a bucket of water, and was horrified to see one of his boots sticking out. Mr. Goodpastor has been suffering with spinal troubles for some time, and it is thought his mind was unbalanced. He was about 55 years of age and leaves a wife and several children.—Bath County Banner.

Feeling Good.

It looked like flash times here Saturday. Money was flowing out of the bank vaults in a steady stream all day in payment for the vast quantity of tobacco being delivered to six or seven firms of big buyers. One bank paid out more than $20,000 before dinner on that day. As nine-tenths of the tobacco of the county has now been sold, large volume of money will speedily find its way to local circulation.—Bath County Banner.

For Breach of Promise, $10,000.

Garrettsville, Tex., June 26.—Miss Calvinet Scott, a prominent society woman of Denver, Col., who instituted suit against Henry Elson Smith for breach of promise, piling her damages at $50,000, got judgment in the District Court today for $10,000 and costs. Smith is a prominent Republican and was a conspicuous member of the Colorado Legislature.

Sunk It In Mine Deals.

Idaho Springs, Colo., June 26.—George B. McClelland has resigned as cashier and director of the First National Bank, and has turned over to his brother-in-law his property. His brother has also deposited collateral sufficient to protect the bank. Mr. McClelland had borrowed largely to carry on mining deals in which he had paid out more than $100,000.

On Saturday afternoon Charlie Cartmill brought his 21-month old girl baby to town, which attracted more attention than ever a baby did before. As stated above the baby is only 21 months old, but it tips the beam at fifty-four and three-quarter pounds. At three weeks old it weighed only four pounds, but since that time has steadily gained in adipose. Details of the Reported Outrages at Changtu in China.

London, June 25.—A dispatch from Shanghai says the details have been received there of the outrages upon Americans and other foreigners at Changtu, capital of the province of Szechuen, showing that their sufferings must have been appalling. The Viceroy of the province, it appears, encouraged the Chinese mob to destroy missionary and other property, and it is reported that a Chinese official attempted to behold Bishop Dunand. The French Minister at Peking has sent an ultimatum to the Viceroy at Nanking, demanding prompt redress of the wrongs done to foreigners, and announcing that in the event of non-compliance with the demands of France the Commander of the French squadron will be empowered to act at his discretion.

GOLD GUARDED BY MOSQUITOES.

Miners Unable to Stand the Tor-ture—Savage Natives Alone Are Successful.

Gold in plenty may be found in the sands of the Volador river—a stream of moderate volume that comes tumbling from the snow line of the Sierra de St. Martha, in South America—but, though the lowland region and the river bed where the precious metal abounds in fabulous quantities are easily accessible, the mosquitoes are so thick and terrible there that all attempts to mine the sands of their gold have so far failed, says the New York World.

Eliseo Reclus, the celebrated French geographer, was the first to explore the plain about the Volador's mouth. It seemed like an earthly paradise at first, and the stinging insects were no more numerous than one might have expected. But as the rainy season came on and the air grew hot and humid, the mosquitoes appeared in incredible swarms. M. Reclus had thought of establishing an agricultural colony on the fertile lowlands, but found the plague of insects so unbearable that he was forced to beat a retreat and abandon his project.

He was the discoverer of this wonderful stream, whose waters sweep over sands that are literally golden. He told the news to the French Vice Consul at Rio Hacha, and this official obtained the concession of this El Dorado. The dangers he was to encounter he knew perfectly well. He took with him when he started an ingeniously constructed gauze tent of large dimensions. For two days, he tried to live under its shelter and watch the operations of his workmen, who toiled in the stifling heat, clothed in thick garments and protected by heavy boots, gloves and veils. At the end of the second day, however, both employer and employees, with one accord, gave up the struggle and retreated.

Yet there are human beings who can venture with impunity into this hell whose guardian demons are mosquitoes, and these are some of the savage natives of the mountains from whose rocky steep the river comes tumbling down. These natives who are mosquito proof are rendered so by their bodies being covered with the scales of that awful disease, leprosy. Strange to say, the mosquitoes will not touch them. But neither gold nor the gods of civilization will tempt them to labor, and there is no human power, apparently, which will drag them off from their rude caves, on the mountain side and make them labor for the white man.

One of the favorite tortures among the natives of the region about the valley of the Volador is to strip their victim and bind him naked to a stake. In a moment his body will be literally covered with mosquitoes, and in a half-hour's time it will be enormously swelled. The torture is in-durably.

Pronounced Hopeless. Yet Saved.

From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four doctors gave me up saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent one above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles; it has cured me and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottles free at W. S. Lloyd's Drugstore, regular size, 50c and $1.00.

Wheat Better Than Was Expected.

Little Rock, Ark., June 25.—The State weather service reports cotton and corn in first-class condition in Arkansas. The heavy rains of last week did some damage to lowland cotton. Wheat thrashing is now in progress, and the crop is turning out much better than was expected. Oats were an average.

As We Grow Older.

He was barely twenty-one. His moustache was merely a delicate bluish, he had been to two French balls, had a bowling acquaintance with three third rate actresses, and no one could ever tell him anything he didn't know.

He admitted a woman whose age was a stationary twenty-nine, whose hair was adjustable, and whose tense was Past.

He passed his hand wearily over his wrinkleless brow, and told his court in the following unimpassioned terms:

"My child, I have only the remains of a wasted life to offer to you. I am tired of everything. Everything hores me. Society has been my ruin! But if you like to take pity on a man who has drunk the cup of Pleasure to its bitter dregs, and flattered away a noble career, I am willing to devote the poor remnant of my life to you entirely."

And the woman shook her head, saying to herself, "Why be even younger than I thought?"

Twenty years' later he was naturally forty-one. He now preferred the circus to French balls, watched baseball games instead of playing poker, and was pretty nearly convinced that there were a great many things which he didn't know, and would probably die in ignorance of. He admitted a woman whose age was a temporary twenty-two, whose bright hair was indigenous, and whose tense was decidedly Future.

By this time he had dabbled in occult cures, developed lead-colored patches his eyes, and hair was gray and scanty.

His joints cracked loudly, as he stretched forth his hands, and paid his court to his divinity in the following impassioned terms:

"I am a young man, with all my life before me! Although no saint, I have a clean record! I feel that I am called to glorious possibilities! Come to my arms, and with me walk down the long vista of the future!"

And this woman also shook her head and turned away to hide a smile, saying to her self:

"He must really be very old to talk like that!"

A CURIOUS FIND.

A Woodman Takes a Human Jaw-bone From a Tree.

Mr. W. A. Blair, of 909 West Peters street, has in his possession what he thinks is the jawbone of a human skull, which was found in the center of a Carroll county tree several months ago.

Mr. Blair has a small wooden box containing two wooden blocks and in one of the latter there are what looks like a jawbone and a row of teeth, resembling human teeth very much. The specimen is in a block of red oak wood about four inches thick, which Mr. Blair says was taken from the center of a tree two feet in diameter. The other block of wood is the part which was taken from over the bone, the print of the teeth being plainly visible on it.

The tree in which the strange bone and teeth were found was one supposed to be about 80 years old, and was on the property of V. B. and P. H. Hesterly, in Carroll county, 10 miles north of Carrollton and five miles southwest of Villa Rica, and six miles southeast of Hickory Level, Ga.

The bone was found by W. F. Turner while splitting the tree into boards, and he makes affidavit that it was 4 inches from the bark of the tree and 4 inches from the center, the tree being a little over two feet in diameter.

The only explanation Mr. Blair thinks that can be offered of the strange find is that a man was murdered and his body fastened to the tree by a wedge being driven through the skull into the tree. In support of that theory there is what looks like a wedge running slantingly through the block containing the bone.

Mr. Blair thinks the murdered man's body must have been left hanging in the tree and that in time the skull was entirely covered by the growth of the tree.—Atlanta Constitution.

It appears that thirteen of the principal breweries in Copenhagen are now using American corn, and that a German commissioner has decided it to be the best cereal known for mixture with rye as a ration for the army.
